Carlos Valdez Professor Toland ENG-001A-1287 7 April 2015 An Unwarranted Call
Do you ever get that feeling you’re being watched? It is interesting how much power the government actually has over privacy. When a registered sex offender, lets say a “peeping tom” moves into a neighborhood, laws require that they notify people living in that neighborhood. If they peaked through a window, they were required to tell others, but when the government peaks into our most private lives …
personal information and locations 24/7, they can get away with it. The government should not be able to look at all the data and on y
