Das Kapital
by Karl Marx

"Das Kapital" "Das Kapital" or "Capital: Critique of Political Economy" was written by Karl Marx in 1867 and it is the masterwork of communist ideology, political theory, and economic critique.

Recreations and Competitions

Swimming

From picturesque white sand beaches and their crystal waters to the Olympic pools used by some of the world's top athletes, swimming combines elegant recreation with demanding competition. Stone Age pictures from 10,000 years ago depict swimming as do early literary texts, including The Odyssey, written by Homer and Beowulf, in which the protagonist disputes claims that he was bested in a swimming match by his friend Breca.

War Propaganda by Notable Artists

It takes more than military might, a keen strategy, and an arsenal of weapons to le also plays a vital role in boosting the morale of soldiers and civilians during wartime

Dick Warlock, Michael Myers, Halloween II (1981): [Halloween II director Rick Rosenthal] never gave me any instruction on how to play [Michael]—nothing at all about the walk. Debra Hill was there every day, and Debra never said, “Can you make the walk a little faster, Dick?” or “Can you make your movements a little swifter?”
